SAMPLE HEADING

This is sample text that shows how a document looks on pleading paper. It has no legal meaning. Each line of the text sits on one of the numbered lines in the left margin, and the numbering starts again at 1 at the top of every page.

Paragraphs are separated by a blank line. The first line of each paragraph is indented half an inch. Long paragraphs continue onto the next page, and the line numbers keep pace with the text.

A quotation is indented on both sides. It stays on the same double-spaced grid, so its lines are numbered like the rest of the page.

This is more sample text. It is here only so the example runs to a second page and shows the footer, the page number and the line numbers starting again at 1. This is more sample text.
